

A-Blast Today To Test Presence Of Poisonous Radioactivity

Dust Clouds To Be Watched With Caution

Atom Bomb Site, Nev. (AP)—The unseen but deadly presence of poisonous radioactivity will be a primary factor in today's scheduled atomic explosion, testing a thousand soldiers and two typical American homes.

This was disclosed yesterday by scientists of the Atomic Energy Commission in a pre-test briefing.

Dr. Alvin C. Graves, deputy test manager, said that while the nuclear gadget to be detonated from the top of a 300-foot tower will be of smaller power-equivalent to about 15,000 tons of conventional explosive—than big atomic bombs, "the amount of contamination will be quite large."

The reason is that the low altitude burst is expected to create an enormous dust cloud, probably a mile or more across at the outset. And this dust will be powerfully impregnated with fission products from the bursting bomb.

The dust cloud, Graves commented conservatively, "must be watched with caution."

He explained that "we would not want the wind to roll the cloud over troops who will be within 3,500 yards" or have it eventually drift over and settle on nearby communities.

Therefore wind conditions at zero hour today (8:20 a.m. EST) must be precisely right or the test will be postponed.

The briefing also brought word of a remote-controlled Navy AD-2 Skyraider jet plane will be flown almost into the very core of the explosion today.

The purpose of this is to provide the Navy with "valuable data for design of new aircraft and the improvement of tactics," said Col. Paul T. Preuss, United States Air Force officer who is the weapons effect test director for the armed forces special weapons project in Albuquerque, N. M.

Preuss' laconic reference strongly suggested that the Navy looks to this test to develop tactical jet-powered drones to drop A-bombs on enemy fleets or enemy troops. The AD-2 is capable of carrying nuclear bombs.

The jet, with a "mother" plane flying at a safe distance, will be headed toward the target zone to bring it into the area of blast and heat at about one or two seconds after the burst.

Lights mounted on the plane will enable observers and cameras to track its flight in the dim light of early morning.

There was no assurance the test force would recover the plane intact. Indeed, Preuss emphasized there was only "hope" that it could be brought back intact by the mother plane and landed for detailed technical study.

Strike Halts Jet Output

Cincinnati (AP)—The production of jet engine for the armed services in what the plant calls the "jet center of the nation" stopped yesterday because of a strike at General Electric in nearby Evendale.

In Washington, the Department of Defense called the situation a matter of "vital concern" but that the situation was too young for them to decide on any action.

General Electric has offered six to eight cents an hour pay increase. The UAW-CIO left their jobs, demanding a pay hike of seven to eight cents per hour more than the company has offered.

The work stoppage began last Saturday when the International Association of Machinists, AFL, quit work when their demands for virtually the same increases in pay were denied.

The combined work stoppage took 4,500 jet engine workers and 1,100 AFL employees off their jobs.

Several thousand office workers and others not bound by the two unions went to their work without hindrance.

Coffee Futures At Record Highs

New York (AP)—Futures contracts covering nearly 10 million pounds of Brazilian changed hands at record high prices yesterday in the first trading in coffee futures here in two weeks.

Prices at the close of trading ranged from 58 cents a pound for delivery of green coffee one year hence to 61.7 cents for delivery this month.

For most delivery months, prices eased back a little toward the end of yesterday's session after advancing the limit permitted under New York Coffee and Sugar Exchange regulations. They were still at historic highs, however.

Young Joy-Rider Admits He Stole Over 400 Autos

New York (AP)—A 16-year-old boy was sentenced to the reformatory yesterday after admitting he had stolen more than 400 cars just to go joy-riding.

Brooklyn County Judge Samuel S. Leibowitz told the boy, Robert Maher:

"You are the champion auto thief in America. That's a great distinction, isn't it? Here you stand before me ready to go to jail, when you should be studying the box scores of the Dodgers."

Replied Robert: "I don't know what comes over me—I just can't stay away from automobiles. It's not that I want to do it—I just do."

Engineer Says Voice Wasting Money On Job

Washington (AP)—An exasperated engineer testified yesterday the Voice of America is wasting more than $850,000 on the construction of radio transmitters which, he said, may prove inadequate for the broadcasting job to be done.

Albert C. Veldhuis told the Senate investigations subcommittee that architect-engineers in charge of the program either spurned or ignored any advice his company gave them.

Personally, he said, he thinks the architect-engineers are incompetent.

"I have been driven on several occasions practically to despair," Veldhuis said in describing attempts to get changes in the design of the transmitting towers. He added that he felt he "couldn't cope with this situation."

Veldhuis is chief engineer of the Wind Turbine Co. of West Chester, Pa., which received a contract in August, 1950, to build some "curtain" antennae for transmitters costing $1,700,000. He testified "a possible saving of at least 50 per cent could have been achieved" with different designing.

A certain antenna is one which employs a curtain or screen-like arrangement of wires to beam its signals.

Danes Recognize Pole As Refugee; Will Return MIG

Copenhagen, Denmark (AP)—A Polish Air Force lieutenant who fled to Denmark in a Russian-built MIG15 jet fighter was formally recognized yesterday as a political refugee and granted asylum here.

At the same time, Poland was told the Danes had now finished their examination of the MIG and were prepared to hand it back as soon as the Poles care to pick it up. Experts have dismantled it to bits to plumb its secrets.

The Red fighter will have to be sent back to Poland by ship as no Polish pilot will be permitted to fly it over Danish territory.

Polish requests that the refugee, Lt. Franciszek Jarewski, be handed over were refused.

Senators Ask Justice-Police Consolidation

Harrisburg (AP)—The first bill to carry out a 100 million dollar long-range plan to cut costs in state government reached the legislature last night.

The measure would bring the state police and parole board under the Justice Department. The Chesterman Committee estimated this move would save $2,364,700 a biennium.

Sen. James S. Berger (R-Pottsville), sponsored the legislation together with Sen. Rowland M. Mahoney (R-Crawford) and John H. Dent (D-Westmoreland) a mid signs the lawmakers may abandon public hearings on the Chesterman proposals.

Rep. Adam T. Bower (R-Northumberland), who with Berger is co-chairman of a 30-man legislative committee studying the Chesterman report, said he favored discontinuance of the hearings.

The 30-man committee meets today to take action on the suggestion to terminate the hearings. The session is scheduled immediately after a hearing on Chesterman recommendations to save 9 1/2 millions a year in education costs.

Introduction of the justice-state police-parole board consolidation measure was the only important development on an otherwise quiet legislative day.

The bill would amend the administrative code considerably to carry out the intent of the Chesterman report. Appropriations would be transferred to the Justice Department.

In effect, it would require Col. C. M. Wilhelm, state police commissioner, and Henry C. Hill, parole board chairman, to report to Atty. Gen. Robert E. Woodside instead of directly to the governor. Operations of the state police and parole board otherwise would be unchanged.

Interviews with a cross-section of the legislative committee studying the economy reports showed divided opinion on whether further hearings should be abandoned.

Bower reiterated his stand that the reports should be submitted to the lawmakers in the form of legislation for debate from the floor.

Reds Score Breakthrough

Seoul (AP)—Chinese Reds smashed into mainline trenches guarding Little Gibraltar on the Western Front early today and hours later U. S. Second Division soldiers still were fighting grimly to seal the breach.

Reports of the fighting were fragmentary, an Eighth Army staff officer said.

The Chinese drove into the main trench network shortly after midnight under cover of nearly 2,000 rounds of artillery and mortar fire. The size of the attacking Red force was not immediately known.

The fight for possession of the vital trench link still was raging at dawn.

Six-Year-Old Boy Hero In Rescue Of Woman Who Fell Through Ice

Pecks Pond—A six-year-old pink-cheeked lad exhibited exceptional courage here Sunday when he inched his way across the ice of Pecks Pond to rescue a 40-year-old woman, numbed by the icy waters and near exhaustion.

Jackie Howell, son of Mr. and Mrs. Manuel Pinto is credited with saving the life of Mrs. Dorothy Miller, 40, who fell through the ice on a "short-cut" to her cottage on the edge of the pond.

Mrs. Miller was returning from a nearby grocery at 5 p.m. across ice which she had traveled "15 or more times this winter without any trouble."

But about 100 feet from shore the ice gave way and Mrs. Miller toppled into the freezing water. For 15 minutes she tried to summon neighbors by frantically calling for help. Then, about 5:15, Mrs. Pinto heard the cries for "Alice," and saw Mrs. Miller, groping in the water, hanging on by resting her elbows on the ice.

"Each time I'd put pressure on my arms the ice would break," Mrs. Miller said yesterday in a reenactment of the near tragedy. The water at the point where the woman fell was reportedly "well above her head."

Mrs. Pinto summoned her husband, Manuel and Mrs. Miller's husband, Earl. Both men tried rescuing the drowning woman by crossing the ice, but both fell into the water only a short distance from the shoreline.

Finally Manuel Pinto asked for Jackie's assistance. Taking two ropes, the men tied one around Jackie's waist and handed him the end of the other.

The frail lad of 40 pounds moved slowly calling "I can feel the ice cracking, Daddy." But he continued his heroic journey, finally reaching Mrs. Miller.

Jackie handed the rope to Mrs. Miller who wrapped it around her wrist, and both men on shore dragged her over the ice to safety.

"If it hadn't been for that boy I'd surely have drowned," Mrs. Miller said yesterday. "You can bet I'll never cross that ice again."

Tito Reaches Great Britain

London (AP)—President Tito of Yugoslavia, the first head of a Communist state to visit Britain, arrived by ship yesterday for talks bearing vitally on Western defense plans in the Balkans.

Resplendent in naval uniform and gold braid, the smiling Red ruler was greeted by the Duke of Edinburgh, the husband of Queen Elizabeth II, Prime Minister Churchill and Foreign Secretary Anthony Eden.

Immediately Tito was surrounded by swarms of police—many wearing bullet-proof vests. Scotland Yard imposed security precautions without recent parallel.

Among subjects expected to be discussed in Tito's talks here are Balkan defense, economic aid, Trieste and Yugoslavia's relations with Italy and the Vatican, and possibly even the matter of a formal pact of a political, economic or military nature.

British officials also are interested in Tito's evaluation of the impact of Joseph Stalin's death on world affairs. Yugoslavia was expelled from the Russian-led Cominform in 1948 for being too independent of the Kremlin.

Court Rules States May Bar Picketing

Washington (AP)—The Supreme Court yesterday upheld the right of Virginia courts to halt peaceful picketing if it conflicts with the state's right-to-work law.

The Virginia law says the right to work may not be denied because of membership or non-membership in a labor union. It marks illegal any agreement between an employer and a union by which a non-union worker is barred from working.

Justice Douglas, dissenting, called the court's 7-2 decision "a broadside against all picketing." Justice Black also dissented, but did not set forth his reasons.

Justice Burton, reading the majority opinion, said the picketing involved "was undertaken and carried on with at least one of its substantial purposes in conflict with the declared policy of Virginia."

He said union picketing of a school construction project in Richmond in 1950 was "done at such a place and in such a manner that, coupled with established union policies and traditions, it caused the union men to stop work and thus slow the project to a general standstill."

Hawaii Statehood Bill Hits Snag

Washington (AP)—Hawaii statehood hit a snag in the Senate Interior Committee yesterday and new hearings were ordered.

The question of an exact boundary definition of the proposed new state brought a demand for committee members for "more information."

The problem will be discussed with representatives of the Defense and Interior departments in closed session today.

But Chairman Butler (R-Neb.) told reporters after a meeting yesterday that the committee probably will decide on a final draft of submerged lands legislation before acting on the Hawaii bill.

President Prepares To Oust Many 'New Deal' Thinkers

Washington (AP)—Sen. Taft (R-Ohio) said yesterday President Eisenhower is getting ready to sweep out hundreds of top policy-making officials whom Taft described as "New Deal thinkers" left over from the Truman administration.

At the same time, the Eisenhower administration doused cold water on any move to revive the controversial health insurance program of the Truman regime, dubbed "socialized medicine" by its opponents.

These developments came as the new Republican administration began to shift into high gear its drive to get its own team and its own policies into operation.

Emerging from a White House conference, Taft told newsmen he expects Eisenhower to issue an executive order within a few days stripping away the civil service status that has protected the jobs of numerous policy-making officials.

Several administration leaders have complained that Democratic blanketing of many key jobs under civil service has made it impossible for them to name even their own top assistants in some cases.

Taft and House Speaker Martin (R-Mass.), who also attended the White House parley, both indicated that a thorough "housecleaning" is in the offing.

However, Martin said Eisenhower expects to announce a plan late this week to reshuffle the Agriculture Department. Martin said this plan does not call for any "violent changes" but seeks to improve the department's efficiency in organization.

Lenten Meditation

By Rev. Thomas Shoemith
Christ Episcopal Church, Stroudsburg

To answer the question, Lent is one of the seasons of the Church Year, a penitential season; its purpose to enable members of the Church, Christ's Body, to make ready or to prepare themselves to receive and to live anew the glorious fact of their Lord's Resurrection and the implications thereof.

Originally, Lent was observed but one day, Good Friday; then lengthened to Holy Week; later on a period of forty days to correspond to Christ's temptation in the wilderness; finally to be preceded by a Pre-Lenten season of three weeks before Ash Wednesday.

The methods of preparation for all Christian people were broadly speaking, two: First, to follow with mind and heart the life and teachings of their Lord with particular emphasis on His passion which reached its climax in His crucifixion; in short, to read, mark, learn and inwardly digest.

Secondly, the act of penitence, wherein there is acknowledgment sins against God and man, and the further step of repentance, a change of mind whereby the self is directed toward God and God becomes the chief end and directive force of one's life.

Two methods of preparation decisive not only for Easter but for living day by day.

West Demands Malenkov Act In Good Faith

Washington (AP)—The United States joined other Western countries yesterday in challenging Soviet Premier Malenkov to prove the sincerity of his inaugural talk about world peace with action.

The State Department tempered its challenge, however, with a statement that it received "with interest" the assertion by the new Soviet leader that all issues with the United States and other nations could be settled peacefully.

It noted also as of some significance that Malenkov in his inaugural address to the Supreme Soviet in Moscow Sunday "barely mentioned" the name of the late Joseph Stalin, his predecessor.

Other Western capitals, including London and Bonn, voiced a direct deeds-not-words reaction to Malenkov's unusually soft spoken speech.

Congress heard from Sen. Knowland (R-Calif.) a demand for a prompt showdown with the Communist bloc in the United Nations.

Knowland, chairman of the Republican Policy Committee, proposed the new administration move to have the U. N. brand Russia as an aggressor and violator of the U. N. Charter. He urged that the U. N. ask other U. N. members to withdraw recognition of Red China and to declare a complete embargo or blockade of supplies to the Chinese Communists.

It is time, he said, that the nations of the free world "stand up and be counted."

Malenkov stirred real interest within the administration and abroad with his statement that all "troublesome and unsolved" issues with the U. S. and other countries can be solved peacefully.

Also noted with interest here was the absence in his talk of the usual Communist tirades against American "war mongers" and "imperialists." Since Stalin's death Soviet officials and press organs have avoided these terms as well as any attacks on President Eisenhower personally.

The State Department, in a statement read by Press Officer Lincoln White, took its cue to a degree from this more hopeful attitude. White told newsmen it was an informal statement but fully authorized, although not cleared personally by Secretary of State Dulles.

Just a week before Malenkov spoke, Dulles, at a news conference in New York, said that with the passing of Stalin he felt that a new era would dawn in which human aspirations for freedom and individual dignity would become evidence.

Dulles said that suppression of human liberties in the Soviet Union was due to the tyranny of one man—Stalin—who he said capitalized on the prestige won by the Red Army in the last war.

Change In Red Policy Unlikely Yet Possible

By J. M. Roberts Jr.

Associated Press News Analyst
Britain and the United States under Eden and Dulles react the same to Malenkov's peace talk as they did under Acheson, Bevin, and Morrison to Stalin's peace talk. They ask for the proof of the pudding.

For a country with the recent record of Russia, which so far as anyone knows still lives by the book of international revolution and a Czarist-born policy of aggression, the diplomats would consider themselves way out on a limb if they took any other attitude.

Foreign diplomats in Moscow, however, generally took a more optimistic attitude. They thought Malenkov might really mean something when he says that all troublesome issues between Russia and other countries, including the United States, were subject to peaceful settlement. The reply, as usual, is "Sure they are; On Russia's own unacceptable terms."

There is another factor in the present situation, however, over and beyond the possibilities of actual settlement, making another conference with the Russians look more profitable than those of the past have proved.

For one thing, there is need for exploring the possibility that an actual change is taking place in Russian policy. The Allies have always supported their military program with the idea that it would one day force a change in Soviet policy. It would be foolish, under the theory, always to protest that no change is possible.

It would be just as dangerous to forget that such a change under any form of totalitarianism is extremely unlikely, or to think it could be depended upon for any considerable future even if it did occur. But there is a difference between an open mind and carelessness in the face of known dangers.

Only time will give any perspective on the slight indications so far that Joseph Stalin is rapidly headed for the role of forgotten man. But the brevity with which the Supreme Soviet kissed him off at its Sunday meeting was rather surprising, and his bare mention by Malenkov equally so.

There is a bare possibility that when Malenkov says things may be negotiated it doesn't mean exactly the same as when Stalin said it.

Malenkov may know that history would write in bolder letters of a man who brought peace and real prosperity to Russia than of the ruthlessness of a never-ending "revolution."

It is doubtful that his training fits him for anything except an imitation of Stalin. He has been a shadow, not a leader. Such shrewdness as he possesses has been devoted primarily to promoting himself. But it is up to the Western Allies to diagnose him and his policies as rapidly as possible, and they can't do that by standstillness.

It may be all right to demand of Russia that, before the other nations can talk to her about the possibilities of living together in the world, she renounce some of her long-standing attitude by ending the Korean War and agreeing to an Austrian peace treaty.

But this is demanding that she strip herself of arguing points at the peace table. It may be what she should do, but not what she is likely to do.

In a peace conference, on the other hand, she might not be made either to put up or shut up. But she could be reduced to carrying on her "peace offensive" from a vastly weakened position. And the Allies could learn a lot about how to deal with future representations.

One-time Police Officer Ernest Pressley puts some of his dogs through their traffic safety routine.

Children Learn Traffic Safety From Group Of Trained Dogs Belonging To Former Cop

By Henry C. Nicholas
Written for Central Press and The Daily Record

A group of trained dogs owned by a former policeman, more than all the laws and regulations of municipal, school and police authorities, has reduced the number of traffic injuries and deaths among the school children of the nation.

Sponsored by the American Trucking association and endorsed by J. Edgar Hoover of the FBI, the National Safety Council and the International Chiefs of Police, this unique Animal Safety Circus completed during the last school term a tour of 15 states, performing before some five million children.

So remarkable were the results obtained from the tour during last year's school term, and so numerous were the requests from school authorities for the Animal Safety Circus to appear in their city, that the American Trucking association found it impossible to accept all of these invitations. As finally arranged the tour will cover some 15 other states during the current school term.

The animal safety circus is the brain child of Ernest E. Pressley, formerly of the police force of Charlotte, N.C. A great lover of children and animals, Pressley had spent years in training dogs, whether on the streets, in the field, or around the house.

He liked to hunt with his pedigree setter, Lady, and was an acknowledged expert in field training of dogs of every breed.

When Pressley was appointed a traffic officer near one of the largest schools in Charlotte, he was amazed and shocked at the children's disregard of traffic regulations, even at times when accompanied by their parents. There's something wrong somewhere, thought Pressley. You can't tell me that a child hasn't as much sense as a dog.

It was then that the great idea which has saved the lives of so many school children came to Pressley. Why not use his setter, Lady, and his wife's collie, Lassie, to teach school children traffic safety rules?

During his spare time over a period of some months he trained Lady and Lassie, and then invited the school children to his two-dog show.

The show proved a tremendous success, and there was a noticeable improvement in which school children of all ages observed traffic rules and regulations.

Encouraged, Pressley added more dogs to interpret more traffic safety rules. Today he has eight dogs in his troupe, which is transported in a station wagon and truck.

The troupe now includes Lassie, the leading lady, Susie, Elmer, Lady, Jingles, Dot and Annie. Elmer is the clown, the dog that attempts to take advantage of Officer Pressley as the show progresses and does everything wrong. Finally he is punished for his misbehavior.

Officer Pressley is in receipt of all kinds of letters from children pleading for "poor little Elmer." He is clearly the children's favorite.

One of the show's most effective means of teaching observance of traffic safety rules among children comes at the end of the performance, when Pressley tells them about the Junior Traffic Safety club. This club now has a membership of more than 700,000 school children and is rapidly expanding.

To qualify for membership, the pupils must answer a series of questions which they are given to take home and study. When a boy or girl passes the examination without missing a single question, the teacher enters him as a member and he receives from the American Trucking association a membership certificate, inscribed with his name over the pictorial background of Pressley and four of his performing dogs.

"The Officer Pressley Safety Circus," said George N. French of the American Trucking association, "is designed to teach American school children traffic safety practices."

"From the mail we have received from thousands of children and from their parents, teachers, principals, school superintendents, mayors, police chiefs, traffic policemen, school safety supervisors it is apparent to us that the Animal Safety Circus message has hit the bull's-eye."

While French says it is impossible to estimate the number of limbs saved and lives spared as the result of this educational campaign, yet independent studies made in some of the communities where the animal circus appeared have shown amazing results. The accident rate among school children in these communities is reported to have been reduced by the astonishing figures of from 25 per cent to over 75 per cent.

Three Enter GOP Race For Judge

Harrisburg, (AP)—A three-way Republican contest developed yesterday for two nominations for the State Superior Court at the May 19 primary.

Judge W. Walter Braham, of Lawrence County Common Pleas Court, filed last-day nominating petitions for the $23,000 appellate court post, making the third GOP entry.

Judge J. Colvin Wright, Bedford County, recently appointed to the Superior Court, and Judge Harold G. Erwin of the Delaware County Common Pleas Court, previously filed Republican nominating petitions for the Superior Court.

M. Harvey Taylor, Republican state chairman, said both Wright and Erwin have the backing "of most organization leaders."

Asked if Braham's action in filing a nomination petition meant a GOP fight in the May 19 primary, he told a newsman:

"Well, he still has a week to withdraw, doesn't he?"

Democrats, in contrast, presented only two candidates for the two nominations, Judges W. C. Sheely, of Adams County, and John I. Hook of Greene County. Both were endorsed by the Democratic State Policy Committee, composed of top-ranking party leaders.

Candidates have until March 23 to withdraw their nominating petitions.

One of the Superior Court posts goes on the ballot this year through the election last year of Judge John C. Arnold to the State Supreme Court, creating a vacancy in the Superior Court. Gov. John S. Fine appointed Judge Wright to the Arnold vacancy and Judge Wright became a candidate for a full 10-year term.

The second opening on the Superior Court was created by the decision of Judge Claude T. Reno, of Lehigh County, to return to private law practice at expiration of his term at the end of this year.

The Superior Court posts are the only state-wide offices at stake in the 1953 municipal elections. Only candidates for the judiciary filed nominating petitions with the State Election Bureau.

Across the state, thousands of other candidates filed nominating petitions at county court houses, for county, city, borough and township offices.

They included candidates for mayor of Pittsburgh, Scranton and 20 third class cities.

Many food experts recommend that adults consume at least one pint of milk a day.

Welfare Units To Convene At Scranton

A joint meeting of Regions 10 and 11 of the Pennsylvania Welfare Conference will be held Wednesday at Hotel Casey, Scranton, it was announced yesterday by the Executive Committee.

Region 10 includes Luzerne, Carbon, and Schuylkill Counties while Region 11 is comprised of Lackawanna, Pike, Monroe, Susquehanna and Wayne Counties.

Ellen Gibbons, executive director of the Pennsylvania Association for the Blind at Wilkes-Barre, is Region 10 chairman. Chairman for Region 11 is Hilda Bonn, of the Scranton DPA staff.

Principal speaker will be Dr. E. Preston Sharp, executive of the Youth Study Center at Philadelphia. Dr. Sharp at various times served as director of the Maryland Commission for Youth, Chief of Training Schools in the Maryland Department of Public Welfare, and director of the Bureau of Community Work in the Pennsylvania Department of Welfare.

During 14 years with the Pennsylvania DPW he was supervisor of rehabilitation at Eastern State Penitentiary and also served as superintendent of the Pennsylvania Training School at Morgantown. Before entering the correctional field he was a public school administrator for nine years.

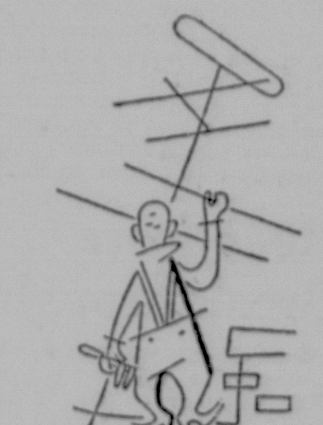

Lancaster Cattle

Lancaster, (AP)—Cattle 2,481, receipts in good supply, market opening steady, prices steady. Calves 750, heavy, run, good and choice selling from 27 to 28. Hogs 1,583, liberal run, market active, prices 22.50-22.75, sheep 50, no lambs here, prices steady.

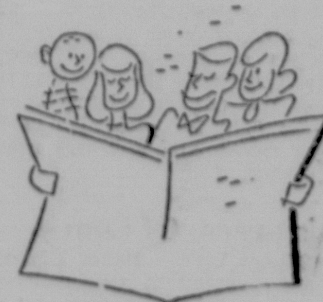

Although rains in London probably are more frequent than in most parts of the United States, the quantity of precipitation is less because it comes in frequent drizzles.

Everything new that comes along...

Gives people more to read about...

In their Daily Newspaper!

When the bicycle was invented, some folks said it would take people away from the newspaper.

They said the same thing about the flivver, and radio. And now television.

But no. Everything new that comes along just makes the newspaper more important to people.

That's why people are buying more newspapers today than at any time in history.

So, if you sell anything for a living, make sure it's advertised where your customers have a chance to see it... in the newspaper.

Danish Dancer Farouk's Friend

Rome (AP)—A 19-year-old Danish dancer said yesterday she is the blonde who has been having dates with former King Farouk since his separation from Queen Narriman.

Margarethe Rung Jorgenson of Copenhagen told newsmen she met Farouk last Thursday night—the same night Narriman took off with her mother for Switzerland. Farouk had a French blonde with him that night, but his interest apparently shifted to Margarethe.

The Danish dancer said she and Farouk had been out two or three times since then, including an appearance Sunday night at George's American Bar, a favorite hangout of Italian aristocrats.

87 Candidates File Nominating Petitions On Closing Day

Large Number Of Aspirants Meet Deadline

The last day rush brought 87 nomination petitions flooding into the commissioners' office yesterday.

The last one or two were handed in just about 4:30 p.m. closing time.

There is now no chance for a political aspirant to get his name printed on the ballot or placed on the voting machine if, he hasn't already filed a nominating petition.

This doesn't mean a man who hasn't filed his nomination petition can't be nominated. He can be, if he wins enough write-in votes in his party primary to give him a majority.

It's generally conceded, though, that it's harder to win on write-in votes than to win when one's name is printed on the ballot.

Yesterday's petitions included:

For county treasurer: C. S. Rutt, Stroudsburg Republican; John W. Wernett, Saylorsburg Republican. For jury commissioner: Homer L. Singer, Stroudsburg RD3 Democrat; Clinton E. Learn, Stroudsburg RD Democrat.

The following petitions for local offices were turned in:

S. S. Everitt Announces Candidacy

Samuel S. Everitt, 723 Sarah St., Stroudsburg, yesterday announced his candidacy for Democratic nomination for school director.

Mr. Everitt is a native of Stroudsburg. He is a graduate of Stroudsburg High School, and East Stroudsburg State Teachers College with a B.S. Degree in Physical Education. He was prominent in several sports at both schools.

Mr. Everitt became a teacher and coach at Stroudsburg High School. After serving there four years, he was an instructor in physical education training for a year and a half at Lafayette College.

He is now employed at Worthington Mower Company. Mr. Everitt is married and the father of two children.

Politeness Course Urged

Harrisburg (AP)—The House has asked last night to require all public elementary schools to institute courses in courtesy and politeness.

Rep. F. Garrett Richter (R-Allegheny) introduced a bill to have a 20-hour course in good manners to be taught for each of four years. "The teaching of courtesy, politeness and good manners should be a part of schooling," Richter said.

Other new bills would: Require all school teachers to complete at least three credits of education courses at a college every three years—Rep. Charles R. Reagen (R-Unlon).

Require that all railroad crossings at public highways or streets be guarded by watchmen or automatic signals—Rep. Anthony J. Petroski (D-Westmoreland). Permit veterans' organizations to insure their members—Reps. John H. Moody and Robert S. Ogilvie (R-Dauphin).

Suits Totaling $150,000 Filed As Result Of Deaths Of New Jersey Couple Here

The death of a New Jersey couple in a Stroud Township cottage early in June resulted in a suit filed in the Federal District Court at Scranton last week.

Three counts asking $50,000 each were brought by Anna Dallari, of New York, administratrix of the estate of Alice T. Sielski. Mrs. Sielski and her husband, Joseph, both 29, were found dead in a cottage listed in the complaint as 719 Rosemont Ave., Stroud Township.

Mr. and Mrs. Sielski rented the cottage on their first wedding anniversary June 5 and were found by Clarence A. Hassinger, owner, June 8. Toxicological examinations later stated the Sielskis died of "massive doses" of carbon monoxide.

The suit is against Hassinger as an individual, Hassinger and his wife, Mabel, owners trading as Beaver House, and Citizens Gas Co. of Stroudsburg.

According to papers filed by Joseph E. Gallagher, Scranton attorney, Anna Dallari was made administratrix of Mrs. Sielski's estate July 28 by the Surrogate Court of Hudson County, N. J.

Air Reserves Prepare Skit

Flight B, Stroudsburg, Air Force Reserve, staff officers last night at Veterans of Foreign Wars home, Stroudsburg, planned for Monday night's skit on activation problems.

Also discussed was last week's meeting and activation dinner at which Col. Charles W. Skeele, Harrisburg, talked on air force developments.

He said the next stage after jets will be turbo-jets; then ram-jets; and finally, there will be rocket-powered aircraft for actual military use.

He also described radio-controlled guided missiles which virtually "can't miss" the enemy plane they are fired at, no matter how high or fast it flies. But—these missiles are not yet in use, he said.

Pfc. Shaffer Training At Fort Bragg

Pfc. Clyde W. Shaffer, son of Mr. and Mrs. Clyde W. Shaffer, 150 E. Broad St., East Stroudsburg, is completing his basic training at Fort Bragg, N. C.

C. A. Serfass, Ex-Sheriff's Deputy, Dies

Clayton A. Serfass, 52, of 151 Broad St., Stroudsburg, died at 12:30 p.m. yesterday at the General Hospital, East Stroudsburg, where he had been a patient for four weeks.

He served as a deputy sheriff under his father, the late Sheriff Eugene Serfass, and again under the late Sheriff Chester Melzell.

He was a former Line Material Co. employee. He worked most recently at the Hughes Printing Co., East Stroudsburg. He was a member of Grace Lutheran Church, East Stroudsburg.

Surviving are three sons, Don H. Stroudsburg; Jack, at Trenton, N. J.; and Dick, Philadelphia; his mother, Mrs. Anna S. Serfass, Stroudsburg; three sisters, Mrs. James Weiss, Stroudsburg; Mrs. Grace Hammond, North Haverhill, N. H.; and Mrs. Myrtle Hilliard, Pen Argyl; three brothers, Effinger, Brodheads; Herbert, Webster, Vt.; and Harvey of Colebrook, N. H.; and a grandson.

Services will be at 2 p.m. Friday at Dunkelberger and Westbrook funeral home with Rev. William F. Wunder officiating, and burial at Buena Vista Cemetery, Brodheads.

Friends may call at the funeral home after 7 p.m. Thursday.

60-Mile Speed Limit Sought

Harrisburg (AP)—The legislature was asked last night to increase the speed limit on Pennsylvania highways from 50 to 60 miles per hour.

"Too many innocent people are losing their licenses for speeding in a day when 60 miles per hour is equal only to what 40 miles per hour was 20 years ago," declared Sen. John J. Haluska (D-Cambria).

Haluska's bill boosting the speed limit was referred to the Senate's Committee on Highways, headed by Sen. John G. Snowden (R-Lycoming).

With Pennsylvania's modern highways and the quality of new automobiles, Haluska said, a speed limit of 50 is "outmoded." Under present law, anyone convicted of exceeding the state's 50 mile limit is not only fined but loses his operator's license automatically for three months for a first offense.

Haluska asserted that it is not speed alone that is the menace on the highways but "driving too fast for conditions."

There are roads, he said on which it is not safe to drive above 35 but on these roads arrests are made not on the basis of speed but on reckless driving.

Another new Senate bill would increase the limitation on county general taxation from 15 to 20 mills—Sen. Patrick J. Toole (D-Luzerne).

Television's Greatest Fashion Show Looms As Sidelight Of Academy Awards Affair

Hollywood (AP)—The Academy Awards presentations Thursday night may well go down in history as television's greatest fashion show.

More than ever before, the movie queens are attending to show off their gowns. It will be the television debut for many and all are aware that millions will be watching them instead of the usual hundreds who formerly were able to shove their way into the bleacher stands.

Sure to command "oohs" and "ahs" will be Janet Gaynor. How many other movie stars have Adrian for a husband?

Her husband has designed a pink, silk organza embroidered with gold and amber oak leaves. Her strapless gown, with a gathered pouf toward the right shoulder, will be enhanced by an authentic gold Persian belt with precious stones encrusted on the buckle.

She will wear another chain of gold around her right wrist, a heavy gold bracelet on her left. Her necklace will be a string of gold claws and pearls.

The first actress ever to win an Oscar ("Seventh Heaven," 1927), she will give a final touch to the silver jubilee fete by wearing a gold evening coat.

Another Oscar winner, Loretta Young, will wear an Edith Head creation of duchess lace appliqued on matching pearl tulle.

U.S. Attorney Takes Oath

Scranton (AP)—Joseph C. Kreder, 29-year-old Pottsville and Scranton lawyer, was sworn in yesterday as acting U.S. attorney for the Middle District of Pennsylvania.

At the same time, his only assistant, Atty. Charles W. Kalp of Lewisburg, resigned effective "as of April 15 or sooner." Kreder, a native of Pottsville who makes his home in Scranton now, becomes the youngest man in the nation to assume the duties of a U.S. attorney.

He was appointed by three middle district judges—Albert Watson, John W. Murphy and Frederick W. Folmer—on Saturday to succeed Arthur A. Maguire of Plains, who resigned the day before.

Kreder will serve in the post until a permanent successor to Maguire is named by President Eisenhower.

Six Sentenced For Mutinies

Copenhagen, Denmark (AP)—Six soldiers charged with taking part in the recent mutinies in the Danish Army received prison sentences yesterday ranging from 6 to 10 months.

The soldiers, all privates drafted under the compulsory training system, tried to march on Copenhagen to protest extension of military service from 12 to 18 months. Because the Gregorian calendar was not adopted by England and her colonies until 1753, the first four Presidents of the United States celebrated their birthdays on one date as children and on another date in maturity.

Let's Have Monday Holidays!

Bills are being introduced in 34 state legislatures to change the observance of several legal holidays, so that they will invariably fall on Mondays.

The purpose is to provide long week-ends for recreation and travel, and at the same time alleviate a serious situation in business and industry—where "split weeks" cause absenteeism, financial loss and decreased productivity.

Sen. Edward J. Kessler (R-Lancaster) last week asked the Legislature to have the Fourth of July celebrated this year on the sixth.

Typical of the move in other states, Kessler said he didn't care what day the holiday fell so long as it was always on a Monday.

In addition to this proposal, a bill sponsored by the labor relations director of Armstrong Cork Co. proposes the merger of Lincoln's Birthday and Washington's birthday to be celebrated as "Presidents' Day" on the third Monday in February.

Kessler says the business people in his district asked him to introduce the bill.

This is the schedule of legal holidays proposed by the bill:

New Year's Day would still be observed on January 1. Presidents' Day would be the sole holiday in February.

The observance of Good Friday would be unchanged, but Memorial Day would be shifted from its traditional May 30 observance to the last Monday in May. This would make it the 25th this year.

Flag Day would continue to be observed on June 14. Labor Day, Columbus Day and Armistice Day would be left alone.

Thanksgiving Day—normally the last Thursday in November—would be observed on the fourth Monday.

And Christmas would still be on the 25th day of December.

The current movement for a partial correction of the mid-week holiday situation—an admitted major nuisance and expense—has come about mainly through the persistent campaigning of calendar reformers.

Economists have recently estimated that mid-week holidays cause an annual production loss of four to five billion dollars, because of starts and stops in the even flow of manufacturing and distribution.

Those favoring calendar reform have been running into sympathy and what they term "delaying tactics" on a perpetual calendar in Washington. So they moved to the legislatures.

What success they will have there remains to be seen. It has always been difficult for some legislatures to resist amending a bill. So we might find Christmas amended out of December 25.

We can see a great deal of merit in the bill in the Pennsylvania legislature from economic, health and recreational standpoints. It should be passed.

It is also time for legislators to give serious consideration to calendar reform because it is obviously the only way to do away with vacillating month-dates.

The Once Over

Letters For Special Delivery
Mr. John D. Rockefeller, 3rd.
Dear JDR-3:

I see where you have given $95,000 to the American Museum of History for a new study to Man, tracing his development from the beginning to the present day.

"Man as he is today will be shown by models, demonstrations and other new exhibition techniques designed to present the three-dimensional view of factors contributing to the make-up of the species," you say. Well, I wish you could leave out Man as he is today. He can ruin any exhibition. He looks awful and is a worse shape than he seems. If you don't want the museum exhibit to be extra depressing, you will stop when you have reached Man at the end of the First World War. Even sooner. He has gone down fast.

The Behind-the-Eight-Ball (1933) Man, also called The Good-Fellow Man, is pretty much like the original Cave Man. You could just make a duplicate of the old model for this specimen. It is hard to tell the difference between the Alexander the Great Man and the 1933 Man. Just show today's man with his hair on end, wearing a homelike hat and Tartan vest, wondering what will pop next. The 1933 Man is quite a study. Johnny-boy, I doubt if you could do much with him for $95,000. It would cost more than that to discover a technique (three dimension or not) which would give him the necessary expression of bafflement, dizziness and general alarm. A true model of the Behind-the-Eight-Ball Man would have to convey clearly the impression of a guy who had blown his top, lost his rudder, scrapped his compass, burned out a set of fuses, snapped his cap, and began trying to put on his hat, feet first.

There is nothing about the man of today that resembles the Snow-Where-I'm-Going Man of 1910, for example. Even the All-None-on-Margin Man of 1928 had not developed the Pinned-Back Ears. The 1928 Man lacked the pop-eyed expression and bored overall demeanor of the Video Man of 1948-1953 type. He walked erect instead of sprawling on a couch watching a screen to see what would happen next in the way of a world crisis. He didn't have that queer physique that comes from taking only twelve minutes for a full meal, making unnecessary week-end auto trips on crowded highways and looking under the bed for ogres and monsters.

If you go ahead with this model of the 1953 Man, you will have to be sure you show him with a fright-wig on, and wearing, for all occasions, the completely sabotaged demeanor. Even the 1941 (Here-We-Go-Again) Man didn't have to wear bumpers front and rear, and carry a gyroscope. His head was longer, as it hadn't been flattened by so many blows. In his model the battered look reached a height. By 1950, he had developed the low chassis and the ballbearing neck which permitted him to see in all directions, turn his head around at the slightest sound. (The 1960 Man had better have one big eye in the back of his head which lights up at the approach of a new crisis anywhere.) Well, good luck, John, and could you include in the exhibit the 1945 Man, filled with hope, chastened by war and in a mood to drop that gun, eat his spinach, get to work on time, stop throwing things and be careful what movements he endorsed? He was interesting.

As ever
Elmer (The Where-Am-I-Man)

Few things have been as disturbing as the AAA announcement that 66 million Americans will pile into twenty-two million automobiles every week-end this summer. There is now one pleasure car for every three and a half persons in the U.S.A. (The half persons are the people who sit in the crowded back seat with the dog in their laps.) Think of it: One of out of every three and a half men and women crying, "Where did you learn to drive?" "Ya want the whole road, stupid!" and "You and who else!" This means a great majority of the people are engaged in trying to make the others set new spirit records crossing streets.

MAY ITS SHADOW NEVER GROW LESS

Robert S. Allen Reports

MIG Assaults Are Merely Repetitions Of Many More

Washington — Those MIG assaults in Western Germany are part of a worldwide Kremlin plan of deliberate air provocations.

Last week's two spectacular incidents are merely repetitions of many others that have occurred in less dramatic form in the last two months in virtually every sensitive strategic area.

Following is the grim score as recorded on the "situations maps" of the Joint Chiefs of Staff:

Japan: Red military planes have violated Japan's borders 41 times since January 1. Most of these aggressions have occurred over the northern island of Hokkaido.

Alaska: More than a score of Russian flights have definitely been made over certain crucial sections of the mainland and the Aleutian Islands.

Middle East: Soviet sorties over wide areas of Northern Iran and Afghanistan have become almost a daily occurrence.

Arctic: Russian versions of our B-29s have ranged as far as Greenland and Iceland on obvious military missions.

One Pentagon theory ties the cold-blooded MIG shootings in Europe last week directly to the war in Korea.

According to this concept those murderous attacks were ordered by Moscow in retaliation for the "hot pursuit" flights UN Sabre-jets are now making over Manchuria—and which have cost the Communists at least six MIGs so far.

Neither side has said a word publicly about this momentous aerial extension of the Korean conflict, first disclosed in this column on March 3. The policy was authorized by former President Truman on the strong recommendation of Generals Mark Clark and Hoyt Vandenberg. They urged it as essential for the protection of U. S. bombers. Since "hot pursuit" was put into effect, not one bomber has been lost to air attack.

The U. S. is not in a strong position to counter MIG provocations in Europe.

In Western Germany there are only 76 F-86s, the sole U. S. fighter that is a match for the MIG. Russia has an estimated 800 MIGs in Eastern Germany and the other satellites.

Of the Air Force's total strength in Sabre-jets, 71 per cent of the crack fighters are in Korea.

More Scandal:—There is a very smelly Washington angle to those recent disclosures of widespread graft and racketeering on the New York-New Jersey waterfronts.

The House Merchant Marine

Committee is on the trail of it. A quiet investigation being made by the Committee has already uncovered shocking evidence, as follows:

Certain steamship lines paid out more than $250,000 in graft and "gifts" from subsidies they received from the government.

The Maritime Administration, an agency of the Commerce Department, did not require these subsidized corporations to file audits from 1947 to 1951. The law specifies such reports must be submitted, but the Maritime Administration made no effort to enforce it.

The House Committee got a startled earful on this amazing situation during a closed-door grilling of Deputy Maritime Administrator Earl Clark. At a previous session he told the Committee he knew nothing about the waterfront scandals until they broke in the newspapers.

Committee chairman Alvin Weichel (R. O.) questioned Clark closely on this bland contention.

"You said your office knew nothing about what was going on and had never heard about those things," said Weichel. "But we are now informed that a responsible New York official states everybody knew these scandals were going on. Do you still want to stand on your original statement?"

"I think I should have added that we knew of reports of these activities," replied Clark.

"When did you learn about them?"

"We saw them in the newspapers."

"Well, don't you think you were very dilatory and inefficient in not learning about these practices in the two years you've been on this job?" demanded Weichel. "I don't feel that way about it," said Clark.

"Well, that's what I think," retorted Weichel. "Are you supposed to take somebody off the hook?"

"No, that is not my intention," asserted Clark.

"Don't you ever check the expense accounts of these steamship lines to see if there are phantom expenses?" asked Weichel.

"That is the job of the Comptroller General," argued Clark.

"How much have these subsidized lines paid out in graft in the New York-New Jersey area?" continued Weichel.

"I believe $64,624," replied Clark.

"Isn't it closer to $275,000?"

"That may be right," admitted Clark.

Ralph E. Casey, assistant general counsel of the Comptroller General, told the Committee that the Maritime Administration had not required the subsidized ship operators to submit audits for a number of years.

"You mean the Administration has not secured these reports from the companies since Clark has been there," asked Weichel.

George Sokolsky Says...

If We Are To Have 'Voice Of America' It Should Be For Psychological War

PSYCHOLOGICAL WARFARE

In the present struggle for power among nations, the fact has to be recognized that such private negotiations as occurred at the Congress of Vienna (1815) or even at Yalta (1945) no longer are satisfactory. The recent Anglo-American negotiations in Washington were so secret as to lead to confusing rumors.

In all countries, except those behind the Iron Curtain, public opinion does express itself, often in the form of mass demonstrations. The weapon of psychological warfare therefore is cultivated and strengthened with the object of winning masses of the people to one side or the other.

The "Voice of America" is a device of psychological warfare. Its object is to win friends not among government officials but among the people in favor of the United States. Our hope is that most of the people will become antagonistic to Soviet Russia and the Communist Party. It should further be designed to vitiate any tendency toward neutralism.

In the present investigation conducted by the McCarthy Committee, no attack is being made against the theory of psychological warfare. However, certain phases of this process have been selected to indicate that in the "Voice of America" there has been an area of activity which has been used against the interests of the United States. This does not mean that everything about the "Voice of America" is wrong or that such a device need be abandoned.

For instance, we might go back to the testimony of Virgil H. Fulling, chief of the Latin-American News Service, who has been trying to do a thoroughly American job. He tells of a pro-American demonstration in Guatemala, which is now the Communist outpost on the American continent. Fulling wanted to give that demonstration an enthusiastic display over the "Voice of America." He wrote a script in which he used the term "anti-Communist." Now, let us look at the colloquy on that subject:

Counsel Roy Cohn. "... Had anything been crossed out of the script?"

"Mr. Fulling. Yes sir. Where the term 'anti-Communist' had been used, that was crossed out."

"Mr. Cohn. Now, by what words was the term 'anti-Communist' replaced in each instance?"

"Mr. Fulling. In the first instance where it was called 'anti-Communist organizations' the term was replaced by 'citizens.'"

"Mr. Cohn. The word 'anti-Communist' was deleted?"

"Mr. Fulling. And replaced by 'citizens.'"

"Mr. Cohn. How about in the second instance?"

"Mr. Fulling. In the second instance, the word 'anti-Communist' was replaced by the word 'democratic.'"

Fulling was not permitted to use the term, "anti-Communist Guatemalans." If they were anti-Communists, why call them "citizens" or "democrats"? Why this, was done is not explained clearly in the testimony. Fulling argued the point with his chief, Donald Taylor, who seemed to want to use a broader term—which means what?

What does the word, democracy, or democratic, mean in the United States, in New York or Mobile, in Guatemala or Prague? Everywhere it has a special meaning. The other day, I was talking to a man who insisted that "democratic" means "equalitarian"; That is, that all men are equal. Equal how—biologically, legally or in the sight of God?

In psychological warfare, words are important only if understood by those at whom they are aimed. If misunderstood by them, if given an erroneous twist, the same words can be destructive. For instance, at most, the word "democratic" in the United States can mean government by the choice of the people at a free election; in a Communist country it means the dictatorship of the proletariat.

When Communists use the term "democratic front," they mean an amalgam of political groups in which the Communists prevail. In the United States, if we had such a term, it would mean a political group dominated by Adlai Stevenson's party to which a large number, if not an actual majority, of the American people adhere.

If we are to have a "Voice of America," it is necessary that the psychologists understand words and their application. This work should be regarded not as an international amusement program but as psychological warfare against an enemy.

'Irish Eyes' Lapsed Into Obscurity, Then Hit Peak Of Popularity In Ireland

(This is the second of two articles on George Graff, who wrote the lyrics for "When Irish Eyes Are Smiling.")

By Leonard Randolph

When those "Irish Eyes" first started smiling in music, George Graff was in no mood for writing the words to a popular song.

Mr. Graff had been in a New York hospital for an emergency appendectomy. In those days, recovery from such operations was an involved, rather painful procedure.

On the day he got out of the hospital, George went to his office, just to have a look-see and settle a slight dispute which had occurred in his absence.

While there, he received a call from "Julie" Witmark, one of his publishers. Said Witmark, in effect: "You'd better come on up here. The 'old man' is ready to go on with rehearsal. Everything's waiting for that one song."

The "old man" was Chauncey Olcott, that day's most famous Irish-American minstrel-tenor and one of the finest entertainers ever to do vocal grace to the "old sod."

Chauncey bought most of his songs along with the script for whatever show he happened to be appearing in at the time. But he left room for one or two "commercial songs"—songs which had little direct bearing on the show itself, but stood a good chance of becoming successful in their own right.

Olcott had told Graff he wanted a song "with something about eyes" in it. That was all George had to go on when he started back to his home.

An accepted songwriter at 22, Graff was not the kind of man who could be downed by momentary misfortune—even the process of losing an appendix.

As he turned the corner of Broadway and 57th St. he was suddenly struck by the wonderful combination of the words "Irish" and "eyes." It was pretty easy from then on.

Graff arrived at his apartment "sometime around 5 p.m."

With time out for dinner, the lyrics to the song had been written, placed in an envelope and were ready to mail at 8 p.m.

George had no great dreams about "Eyes." He wasn't satisfied with it. It hadn't been "polished" as much as he would have liked.

"Eyes" stayed around for two years after Olcott's introduction. Then, like most "pop" tunes, it died on the market.

No one was particularly disappointed in this. Odds against a tune's becoming a "standard"—one which is played every year, all year 'round—are roughly a million to one.

Then some of George's friends began coming back from visits to Ireland. Each told the same story. Somehow—and no one has arrived at a final explanation—the land of Erin go Bragh had got hold of the song. Irish tenors were singing it all over the place.

Looking back on this, Graff recalls his own skepticism.

"You know how it is," he says. "Your friends tell you one thing—mostly because they know you want to hear it. First thing you know, you start to believe it. Then the royalty check comes in and you know darned well somebody was lying."

Graff's reputation as a lyric writer did not depend on "Eyes." One of his other tunes—"Till the Sands of the Desert Grow Cold"—was a hit almost from the start.

It was this tune for which George was famous when he visited Chicago in the early thirties. Bands played "Sands" everywhere in recognition of his presence.

When he returned to New York, George went for a ride on the College Point ferry. On board the ship, a small combo suddenly struck up the tune of "Irish Eyes."

George was so pleased he gave the bandleader a dollar tip. The bandman was flabbergasted, but no more so than the lyric writer had been. He'd thought the tune had gone the way of all "currently popular" song hits.

Instead, "When Irish Eyes" had made a safe passage across the Atlantic and back. By now it was firmly entrenched in the hearts of the song in manuscript form, picked up its title as a tagline and plastered it all over the front page of every Hearst paper in the country—a sizable number.

So great was the effect of the slogan that "Wake Up America" has stayed in the vocabulary right through World War Two.

But the song died the death of a turkey. The way George sees it is that people don't like "to be preached at" in a popular song—and that one was definitely a preaching song.

His interest in sacred tunes (not "preaching") has grown until gradually it displaced all other song-writing demands.

During the past few years—since his move to Stroudsburg—he has written nothing but tunes of a religious nature. He recently completed another one for use by a national organization.

With at least 500 songs behind him, the writer of "Irish Eyes" can look back on a successful life's millions of persons—Irish and otherwise.

Ernest Ball

Back in those days it was a tough proposition to get a song before the public, then make it a hit. There was no radio "disc jockey" to play the tune over and over again day after day. Television was just an electronic gleam in the scientist's eye.

Putting a song over depended almost entirely on the human foot and a good (well, anyway, passable) set of human vocal chords—both of which belonged to a hardworking, generally penniless gentleman called a "song-plugger."

The gentleman did just that. He "plugged" songs. Hustled from band to singer to radio program to concert hall and vaudeville stage to "sell" so-and-so's song to so-and-so. The latter-named being a famous person, if possible.

It was during these early days that George Graff got to know Jessie Jewett. Mrs. Jewett was, at that time, the wife of Ernest Ball, Graff's most famous collaborator. He and Mrs. Jewett wrote a sacred tune called "Teach Me To Pray" which has become something of a standard work in religious circles.

It was early, too, when he got to feeling "bitter" about Teddy Roosevelt. That was around the time of World War One and George wasn't too happy with the old rough rider's repeated pleas for America to enter the war.

Finally—one night while he was lying in bed—Mr. Graff suddenly got to thinking that maybe it was time that America, at least, got prepared—just in case she did get drawn into the war.

Like most song writers, his inner thoughts came out as a song. The name of it was "Wake Up America" and it made Graff the "Paul Revere" of World War One.

Police Issues Warning To Dog Owners

Dog owners in East Stroudsburg will be subjected to prosecution for permitting their animals to run free and unrestrained in the borough, authorities said yesterday.

"We are swamped with complaints by people whose yards and gardens are being ripped to pieces by dozens of dogs," police said.

The law requires first that all dogs be licensed. It provides that they be under restraint at all times by their owners. They must be either tied, confined or under full control of the owner or his agent.

Any violation from these practices will be prosecuted, police said.

Hungarians Leave Stalin Ceremony

Vienna, Austria (AP)—Disorders broke out at a Stalin commemoration ceremony in Budapest last week, the American-sponsored Vienna radio station, Red-White, Red, claimed yesterday.

Quoting eyewitness reports, the radio said Hungarian workers, ordered to attend the meeting in front of the late Soviet dictator's monument, left the ceremony when the Russian anthem was played.

Breaking through strong police cordons, they halted only when the Hungarian national anthem was struck up. When that stopped, they continued their flight, the radio said.

Here's Packard's new medium-priced car!

The New Packard CLIPPER

Here's your opportunity to own and drive a really fine automobile at only a few hundred dollars more than you'd pay for a car in the lowest-priced field!

IN ALL truth, the new Packard CLIPPER is enjoying public response—far beyond expectations—and has, since the first day it was shown!

Because the value is there, and the price is right.

How can Packard do it? Deliver so much big-car value and performance at medium-car prices?

FIRST: It's Packard engineering—traditionally fine, historically dependable. Packard, you remember, is the oldest maker of fine quality cars in America. SECOND: Packard occupies a unique manufacturing position, for Packard alone with 54 years' experience in fine car building, combines craftsmanship of the highest character, and modern mass production techniques, to produce greater dollar for dollar values.

In addition to greater values, you get Packard's contour styling that is setting the new trend in automotive design. Contour styling means not only a handsome car, but better visibility—any way you look! You get the smoothness and comfort of the famous Packard ride, too—real big-car ride!

You get the unforgettable kitten-smooth, whip-quick pull and zoom of the Packard Thunderbolt-8 Engine—real big-car power!

In all, you get more than 70 big-car features!

If you plan to buy a car in the $2500 price-class be sure to see and drive the new Packard CLIPPER and compare it with other medium-priced cars. Surprisingly enough the CLIPPER costs only a few hundred dollars more than cars in the lowest-priced field. And, of course, there's a wide range of new beautiful CLIPPER models, any one of which will give you a lift, as well as a ride, anytime you drive it!

In addition to the new CLIPPER, Packard of course continues to build one of the finest cars in the world, sold under the single name PACKARD—America's new choice in fine cars. Now—Ask the man who owns one!

PRE-SCHOOL CONFERENCE of those responsible for the School for Parents last night shows, left to right, Mrs. William Wyckoff, PTA program chairman; Mrs. Charles Albert, AAUW co-chairman of the school; Mrs. Elton Denning, Stroudsburg PTA president; Mrs. Elmer Veely, AAUW co-chairman; and Dr. Clifford R. Adams, speaker, after the dinner held at the home of Mrs. J. L. Cohen.

Parents Go To School But They Set Up The Questions

About 500 parents went to school last night at the School for Parents, sponsored by the American Association of University Women with the Stroudsburg Parent Teachers Association serving as hosts to the meeting which was held in the auditorium of Stroudsburg High School.

The meeting started in the auditorium, at least, but after a welcome from Mrs. Elton Denning, Stroudsburg PTA president, and the introduction of the speaker, Dr. Clifford R. Adams, author and professor of psychology at Pennsylvania State College, the group was divided into ten smaller groups for discussion.

Before they left, however, Dr. Adams challenged them to try to decide in their groups what particular thing they thought would add to the happiness of the family relationship in the Stroudsburgs. With local leaders in charge of each group, they discussed his challenge under a wide variety of headings as became apparent in the questions which they submitted for his study.

While he studied the questions, the group were served with tea and punch by the Stroudsburg PTA, and then came together in the auditorium for his conclusions.

Such questions as "Why do children obey the father more readily than the mother?" Because, said Dr. Adams, the mothers have too often used the father as the family cop, and the children obey through fear, not love. Edward for good results are better than emphasis on punishment, he said.

"Do outside influences undermine parental authority?" The authority was probably never there in the first place, he said, and if there has been no confidential relationship before the age of 12, the opinion of the child's friends will always be more important than that of his parents.

"How can we teach children to live more simply?" By parents living more simple lives, by parents instead of parties, checkers instead of outside card parties.

"Do you approve of teen-age love affairs?" "How late should teen-agers stay out?" "Do we make too many decisions for our children?" were some of the questions presented.

Among his specific suggestions were: "Family times to talk together without reprimand and without strain." Family conferences on family matters with the child having a voice in the decision.

"If you make a contract with your child, see that the rewards and punishments are clear in advance."

One of the problems Dr. Adams presented was that of easing the work of the young mother and finding work for the idle hands of mothers who have completed their jobs.

As background for the discussion, he stressed the responsibility of parents for their children rather than the school, church, or community. "Parents are with their children 97 per cent of the time during those all-important first ten years," he said, "and are 97 per cent responsible for the outcome."

He stressed the importance of security, of an objective attitude, of the establishment of a confidential relationship, the encouragement of activities which the children themselves have initiated.

"We now enjoy five freedoms in the home, he said, the freedom of choosing a mate of living our own marriages, of freedom from domination by one partner, freedom to make our own decisions and freedom to advance our individual talents. Children, too, should be granted these freedoms. Children, too, gain their greatest satisfactions from their friends, families and their work."

The biggest problem in most families, he said, was the lack of communication, between parent and parent, between child and parent, and between child and child. Often family problems can be solved if we can improve the communication of ideas between members of the family.

Dr. Adams expressed himself well pleased with the conference and challenged by the questions, which he plans to use in future articles in his series in the "Ladies Home Journal," he said.

Just Between Us

—By Bobby Westbrook

That stunt at the School for Parents worked out very well for everybody but me. Oh, it worked fine for me, too, but not for my work. You see, according to the usual procedure, you have the speaker, then you have the discussion, then you have refreshments.

That reluctant, hungry-looking creature you see sneaking out just when the discussion begins to get interesting is your newspaper reporter on the way to write it up, and on an empty stomach, too. Usually that is.

Last night, however, they turned the whole thing topsy-turvy. First they had the discussion, and then they had the refreshments, and then they had the speaker. Which was wonderful for my morale and my appetite, but worked havoc with the story.

However, judging by the crowd at the affair either you were there in person or had one of the family there, so you have your own story. Don't know when I've seen so many familiar faces all in one place before.

Sort of a "Who's Who Among Parents?" it looked like to me, with the only people missing the ones who had meetings of their own scheduled for the same time.

Oh it was a nice day, anyway, you look at it. The two high school bands playing together at the YMCA ground breaking made a very impressive sight—and sound. I was standing by two strangers who didn't even know what the occasion was, just passing by. It was interesting to hear their comments on us all. Well, we are nice people.

Mrs. Edwards Gives DAR Pa. History

The Daughters of the American Revolution last night entertained their daughters at the Jacob Stroud Chapter meeting at the Stroud Community House.

Mrs. Harold C. Edwards, past regent of the local chapter, and state corresponding secretary, and herself the daughter of a Daughter, outlined the history of the Pennsylvania DAR, since Mrs. Daniel B. Hogg was appointed first state regent in the nation and during her eight years organized 32 chapters in Pennsylvania.

There are now 131 chapters, Mrs. Edwards said, and outlined some of their accomplishments including the water tower, dormitory, library and health house for the DAR supported schools, and their gifts to Constitution Hall, the Memorial Bell tower at Valley Forge, the tablet in Allentown marking the resting place of the Liberty Bell during the British occupation of Philadelphia, and the restoration of a room in Buchanan's home.

Mother and daughter combinations at the meeting included a piano duet by Mrs. Ashton Burrow's daughter, Margaret Cramer and her daughter Melissa; Mrs. Frank Van Etten and her daughter, Mrs. Allen Zahorik, presiding at the tea table.

Other daughters present included Mrs. Robert Rasey, Janet and Emma Jane Shupp, Mrs. Russell Bush, Mrs. Pearl Werkheiser.

Mrs. G. Raymond Hood presided at the business meeting when a nominating committee was named from the floor including Mrs. Harold Edwards, Mrs. Floyd Bachman and Mrs. Edward Calkins.

The next meeting will be the birthday luncheon at the Indian Queen Hotel.

Portland PTA Plans Easter Egg Hunts

Portland — Woodrow Reimer, of Mt. Bethel, was chairman of the PTA program, which was presented at the Portland School Gymnasium on Thursday in observance of a Men's Night.

Rev. David R. Edwards, pastor of the Portland Presbyterian Church gave the invocation. The American Flag Salute was led by Mr. Reimer. Mr. Reimer, then introduced the guest artists of Allentown, the Albright Ensemble.

Mr. and Mrs. Alvin Albright, gave an hour's concert on the marimba, vibra harp, and chimes, playing marches, classical, overtures and hymns. Their 9-year-old daughter, Joan Louise, played two numbers on the marimba with her parents. Their 11-year-old son Donald played a trumpet solo. As encore numbers, the Albrights played "In the Garden," and "Perfect Day," using the marimba and vibra harp together.

During the intermission a short business meeting was conducted by the president, Mrs. John A. Ribble.

Ernest Courtney reported that the rain caps and hats for the Patrol boys had been ordered.

Mrs. Raymond Scott, program chairman, announced that the dramatic group from Bangor High School will present the program for April.

The annual Egg Hunt for pre-school children will be held on Wednesday, April 1 at 2 p.m. on the school grounds. The regular egg hunt for the school children will be held on Thursday, April 2. The Portland Lions Club has purchased a crate of eggs to be used for the pre-school hunt. The committee from the PTA for the pre-school hunt is as follows: Mrs. Scott, chairman; Mrs. Dorothy Reimer, Mrs. Dorothy Harris, Mrs. Betty Reimer, Mrs. Velma Rusling, Mrs. Shirley Reimer, Mrs. Louise Pritchard.

Clayton Horton spoke briefly about the TB Health Survey. The Mobile Unit will be in Portland on April 21, both afternoon and night.

Mrs. Horace Rusling, spoke for the Lions Club, asking the parents to support the annual band concert to be given on April 16 by the East Stroudsburg High School Band, for the benefit of the local school band. All the proceeds realized from these concerts remains in the school to support the local band.

A nominating committee was appointed as follows: Mrs. Ernest Courtney, chairman; Miss Alice Delp, Mrs. Arthur Reagle.

Through the courtesy of Mr. and Mrs. Woodrow Reimer, the floral decorations for the platform were furnished by Stines Florist Shoppe of Bangor.

Refreshments were served to about 75 persons by the mothers of the 4th and 6th grades. Decorations were in keeping with St. Patrick's Day.

Effort Secret Pals To Meet Friday

Effort — The Secret Pal Club of St. John's Lutheran Church, Effort, will hold an Easter party on Friday night, March 20, at 8 in the Ladies Aid Society Hall.

The committee consists of Mrs. Claire Rader, chairman, Mrs. Norma Gould, Mrs. Eva Knecht, Mrs. June Hook, Mrs. Lois Smith, Mrs. Jane Stuart, Mrs. Etta Faust, Mrs. Audrey Hannon and Mrs. Mary Dinstel.

Shure, it's the wearin' of the green that steals my thoughts this fine mornin', so out with the shamrocks, the green carnations, and the old clay pipe. And if you've heard that I have a clay pipe all my own, it's true. What's more, I have a new use for it that has nothing to do with tobacco. Thanks to Bea Gorgy's skill, it's all wound up in a shamrock-studded handkerchief, tied with Irish green grosgrain, and I'm wearing it on my lapel. What less than that could a Maloney do on this day of dawn? . . . Yes, I've a cosmopolitan turn of mind this mornin'. Not only am I thinking of the Emerald Isle and the colleen's smile, but I'm thinking of West Germany, and all the imaginative toys that are coming from there. You can see them now in our enlarged Wyckoff toy department—cute little dancing girls and boys, at $1 a pair, swirling around on a disk which will double as a yo-yo at a moment's notice; steel xylophones that play a perfect scale and will bring music into the nursery at an early age; bouncing tops that are good for a chuckle anytime; tiny trains and walking dolls of unbreakable plastic that waddle over the table top with an assurance that makes them both lovable and amusing. The best thing about it is that all of these toys are in the 50c to $1.25 range—something that mothers will remember for those birthday parties and special "extra" occasions that are always cropping up . . . Cottons by Artemis. I like that word Artemis—almost as much as I like the beautiful lingerie that comes under this distinguished label. It has an old-world sound quite different from it's very modern approach to dressing the fastidious girl and women. At the moment, this year's Maid of Cotton, Alice Cori, is spicing her very lovely wardrobe with Artemis under-garments, and because we know that Monroe County women want the best, we have stocked many of the lovely styles. There's a camisole top slip with shadow panel, at $3.98; a slip with deep embroidered flounces at the same price; and a straight-cut petticoat with matching camisole at $2.98 for each piece. All are sanforized and have "washer" proof seams, which makes laundering easy as can be. Another thing I like about that camisole just mentioned is the short-tail peplum, designed to "cover the subject" thoroughly and daintily. Cottons by Artemis—crisp, cool, and as delicately embroidered as though they were hand worked. These are a buy-line to be respected . . . But how did I get on this subject when I was planning to write about St. Patrick? I'll never know. But be that as it may, "Top O' the Mornin'" to Ye," and all the rest of it!

1,475 Placed In Industry During Year

Service trades secured the largest placements from the Pennsylvania State Employment Service office in East Stroudsburg last year, according to an annual report by Carl Denz, acting manager.

Of the 1,475 persons placed in positions, hotels, boarding houses, camps and restaurants received 920. Unskilled labor accounted for 281 of the total; 118 in the clerical-sales group; 67 skilled workers, 56 semi-skilled, 22 professional-managerial and 11 in agriculture.

A further study was made to determine the industrial classification of establishments using the placement service. The report showed that 1,031 were services, 115 in manufacturing industries, 108 in construction, 99 in wholesale and retail businesses, 82 in other industrial groups, 29 in private household jobs and 11 in agricultural industry.

A stepped-up promotional program was carried on throughout the year, Denz said, to inform employers of available services through the PSES office.

During the year employer establishment visits totaled 881 compared to 498 in 1951. In addition, 304 promotional telephone contacts were made with employers to solicit job openings and provide information on the service. The extent to which employers use the service is indicated by the fact that 3,184 openings for workers were placed by employers last year, Denz said.

A new medium for providing labor market information to employers and the general community was introduced in 1952 with the development of the Pocono Area Labor Market Letter.

Designed to give employers, organizations and interested persons bi-monthly information on local employment trends, industrial developments and available services, the market letter was reported by Denz as "well received and will continue to be furnished."

Harrisburg (AP)—Job placements by offices of the Pennsylvania State Employment Service totaled more than 423,000 in 1952, a gain of 16 per cent over the figure for the previous year.

Of this total, some 235,000 jobs were in industry and 188,000 on farms, the State Bureau of Employment Security reported.

It has been announced that there will be Local Conference, with conference superintendent Dr. O. A. Hyden presiding, in Pocono Union Church on March 22, at 2:30 p.m. Dr. Hyden will also bring the morning message that day.

Mr. and Mrs. Sam Gaeton were shopping in Stroudsburg recently. Callers at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Lewis Tucker recently were Mr. and Mrs. William Stires and son of Phillipsburg, N. J.

Mrs. Steward Detrick and Mrs. Mary Bisbing called on Mrs. Villorese on Wednesday, later Mrs. Detrick called on Mrs. Steward Bush.

On Monday Mr. and Mrs. Charles Frank, Mrs. Vida Sickler and Mrs. Sallie Henry visited Frank Brufman and daughter Mary, of Mountainhome.

Those from here who attended Tuesday's Pocono Garden Club meeting were Mrs. Sadie McCool, Mrs. Otto Succow, Mrs. Walter Lindstedt, Mrs. Henry Bauman and Mrs. Martha Henry.

Word has been received that Tech. Sgt. and Mrs. Glen Smith, of Nampa, Idaho, are making a business trip East and will visit the latter's parents, Mr. and Mrs. Harry Schaumann, of Henryville, and also the former's parents of Niagara Falls. Sgt. Smith is in the Air Force, as his wife also had been, prior to receiving her discharge.

The Pocono Union Ladies Aid Society met for needlework on Thursday. Those present were: Mrs. John Transue, Mrs. Martha Henry, Mrs. Vida Sickler, Mrs. Cora Stettler, Mrs. Walter Lindstedt, Mrs. Morton Freeland, Mrs. Anne Gaeton, Mrs. Lillian Wood, Mrs. Agnes Wagner, and the hostess, Mrs. Herman Stinner. The ladies have begun working on another quilt.

On Thursday night, among those attending the Daily Vacation Bible School Workshop in the East Stroudsburg Baptist Church, were Mrs. Paul Barry. This week's subject was concerned with planning for the Daily Vacation Bible School, speaker being William Grimm. Next week's agenda will be concerned with literature used in the Daily Vacation Bible School.

AVAILABLE with fully automatic Fordomatic transmission for the first time, this new 1953 Ford F-100 Series of pick-up and panel delivery trucks meets nearly 50 percent of all hauling needs. It also is available with four other transmissions including automatic overdrive. The F-100 features an entirely new "driverized" cab termed "the roomiest, most comfortable truck cab on the road"; a new one-piece, curved windshield and a 4-foot wide rear window. Haynes Motors, Stroudsburg, and Raymond Price, Inc., Mountainhome, are area Ford dealers.

PSES Office Paid $387,000 In Jobless Claims In 1952

More claims for unemployment compensation were filed with the East Stroudsburg office, Pennsylvania State Employment Service in 1952 than the previous year, according to Carl Denz, acting manager of the local headquarters.

Benefits paid under the Pennsylvania Unemployment Compensation Law amounted to about $387,000 last year, Denz reported. In 1951 approximately $200,000 was paid under this program.

New applications also showed an increase in 1952, as did reopened claims. Total of 2,348 new applications were recorded and 2,942 reopened claims. In 1951 there were 2,169 new applications and 1,990 reopened claims. Weekly claims climbed from 14,427 total for the year 1951 to 22,314 last year.

The only decline was in interstate claims. Last year 171 originals were filed and 961 weeklies, while in 1951 it was 178 original claims and 985 weekly reports.

Denz explained the augmented figures are due to an increase in the number of workers temporarily unemployed and those working only part-time who qualified for partial benefits. Payment of this form of compensation constituted a major activity of the local office in 1952.

Life of Riley

By JIM RILEY
Sports Editor

Members of Pocono High's basketball team, the cheerleaders and baton twirlers were guests of the school at the final round of the National Invitation Basketball Tournament on Saturday, in New York's Madison Square Garden. The group was treated, or should I say mistreated, to probably the poorest final round in the history of the NIT. Any resemblance to Saturday's play and real basketball was strictly accidental.

St. John's five apparently ran out of luck and Seton Hall was out of gas, after a long, tiring season. Both teams missed badly, their defensive play was of high school calibre and in general the play was ragged and ill timed. St. John's, the surprise team of the tournament, was able to score only six field goals in the first half, while Seton Hall did just a little better, enough to retain a comfortable lead.

Wally Dukes, six-foot, 11-inch Seton Hall center, was named the most valuable player in the tournament. There can't be a doubt that Dukes is a truly outstanding center and a real All-American. Yet, as far as this scribe is concerned, Arnold Ring, Seton Hall sophomore, was the tournament's number one player. Dukes left via the five-foot route in the first and second games of the tournament, while Ring maintained a steady pace. Ring was particularly brilliant on the defensive backboards.

Dukes' scoring technique apparently counted for much more than Ring's outstanding defensive ability. The fact that Walt is an All-American also helped. I couldn't help but wonder just what kind of a basketball player Junius Kellogg would have been if the giant Negro, six-feet, eight inches tall, had played under Ray Welsh, former basketball mentor at East Stroudsburg State Teachers College. Kellogg is fine offensively speaking, but on defense the Manhattan senior leaves plenty to be desired.

If Kellogg had been schooled defensively by Welsh, I know the big boy would have made every All-American quintet in the country. Kellogg's play throughout the campaign has been plenty alright, but if his defensive weaknesses had been corrected the big Manhattan center would have had a great campaign. All-in-all, the final round of the NIT was far below par and certainly the poorest two games played in the tournament. Although Kellogg will depart from collegiate basketball ranks far below his potential, he will always be remembered as the honest cager who reported a bribe and broke wide open the "fix" scandal. This scandal rocked the basketball world in recent years.

Before forgetting Welsh for the day, it might be a good idea to mention that Ray departs for Philadelphia and then Brunswick, Ga., today. Six clubs in the farm system of the Pittsburgh Pirates will train at Brunswick this spring and Welsh is in charge of transporting all players to the camp. Two buses are slated to leave New York and Pittsburgh and a single bus departs from Philadelphia. The group meets in Washington, D. C., and then hits the road for Brunswick. Training opens on March 20 and ends May 1. Welsh expects to return home about April 15, to take up his scouting duties.

The clubs training at Brunswick this year are Batavia, Pony League; St. Jean, Provincial League; Bristol, Tenn., Appalachian League; Hutchinson, Kas., Western Association; Billings, Mont., Pioneer League; and Brunswick, of the Georgia-Florida League. The camp will be open to all players assigned to these clubs, in addition to recently discharged servicemen and to free agents. Fred Sisolak, a resident of Wind Gap, is scheduled to report to Brunswick, but will move higher if the little infielder continues the pace he set last season. Sisolak once held down third base for West Bangor, of the Blue Mountain League.

Mike Coma, the outstanding right hander who won so many friends while pitching for the Stroudsburg Poconos, when the North Atlantic League was in operation in 1948 and 1949, is scheduled to hurl for Reading, of the class "A" Eastern League this season. Mike is fresh from service in Korea with the Army. Anyone who has ever watched Coma work will never forget the determined right hander. This writer will never forget a one-hitter hurled by Coma against Carbondale in 1949. The temperature was 90-degrees in the shade at Gordon Giffels field, and the only hit was by Jerry Murphy, a relief hurler, with two outs in the ninth round. Coma was near exhaustion after the contest.

Coma will also be remembered for a thrilling 2-1 victory over Mahanoy City in the semi-final playoffs in 1949, at Mahanoy City. The win evened the series at 3-3 and Stroudsburg went on to win the seven-game series, four games to three. George Metropoulos, Bob Miller, Tom Phillips, Charley "JR" Heller, Jim Somers, and Gene Connolly were present in the crowd of more than 18,000 at Madison Square Garden on Saturday.

Mountaineers To Be Home On Five Dates

Stroudsburg High will play eight baseball games during the coming campaign it was announced last night by Mahlon Serfass, faculty athletic manager of the W. Main St. school.

The Mountaineers will play five of their eight games at Gordon Giffels field, while three of the contests will be played on foreign diamonds. Each game is slated to get underway at 4 p.m.

League Foes
Seven of the contests will be against Lehigh Valley League foes, while the Tuesday, April 21, contest with Pen Argyl will be a non-league contest.

The Stroudsburg schedule is conspicuous by the absence of East Stroudsburg High.

Stroudsburg and East Stroudsburg school officials have been unable to agree on a suitable date for the second straight year. The Mountaineers will be the defending title holder in the Lehigh Valley League this season.

Schedule follows:

Date	School	Place
April 17	Catasauqua	Home
April 21	Pen Argyl	Home
April 24	Northampton	Away
April 28	Palmerston	Home
May 1	Whitehall	Home
May 5	Open Date
May 8	Slatington	Away
May 12	Lehigh	Home
May 16	Emmaus	Away

One vote in the National League can block a franchise shift.

O'Malley, in reply to a direct question, said he thought it would "be hard to discuss a vote" in advance.

Agrees
But he said:
"I like the National Association rule which prohibits the transfer of a club during the season and I expect the majors will adopt the rule at their next meeting."

The rule to which he referred allows a club to draft territory in another league only between October 1 and December 1. It currently applies only to the minor league.

Womber Holds Jones To Draw
Brooklyn (AP) — Danny "Bang Bang" Womber of Chicago held favored Ralph "Tiger" Jones of Yonkers, N. Y., to a 10-round draw with his hit and run tactics in the feature bout at the Eastern Parkway Arena last night.

Quick Jabs
Womber, who weighed 152, survived an all out attack to the head and body by Jones in the eighth round and scored throughout the fight with quick jabs to the head and midsection.

Jones, who weighed 152½, won a split decision over Womber four weeks ago at Milwaukee.

Phillies Trim Cardinals, 11-9
Clearwater, Fla., (AP) — The Philadelphia Phillies blasted out 17 hits, including homers by Earl Torgerson and Del Ennis, to defeat the St. Louis Cardinals, 11-9, yesterday in a slugfest.

Home
The Cards collected 13 hits, a homer by Steve Bilko and two homers by Stan Musial.
Curt Simmons started for Philadelphia and pitched shutout ball until the fourth when Bilko's four-bagger, a walk and two singles counted for two runs.

Hunter Paces Brownies To Win

San Bernardino, Calif., (AP) — Young Bill Hunter, of whom the St. Louis Browns expect great things at shortstop, was the take-charge guy in the lineup yesterday as the Browns defeated the Cleveland Indians, 9-4, in exhibition play.

Hits
Hunter hit a triple and a single, drove in one run and scored three himself.

First baseman Roy Sievers got three of the Browns' 14 hits before leaving the game with a pulled leg muscle in the sixth inning.

Baltimore Dazed After Vote

Baltimore, (AP) — Dazed and groping for words to express their bitter disappointment over the flop of the Brown's deal, Baltimoreans yesterday muttered, cursed and hurled accusations of a "double-cross."

They were caught with their hopes up and their guard down.

Words
"There has been a double cross somewhere," said Acting Mayor Arthur B. Price.

"Everybody here in City Hall is in the dumps," moaned Price.

Pocono A.C. To Hold Meeting

Pocono A. C., Monroe County's entry in the Blue Mountain Baseball League, will hold an important business meeting today.

Place
The meeting will be held at Kenny's Bar and Grill, N. 9th St., at 7:30 p.m.

A playing field will be the major topic of discussion at the meeting.

Kiner To Arrive In Pirates' Training Camp On Thursday

Palm Springs, Calif., (AP) — Home-run slugger Ralph Kiner said yesterday he hopes to join the Pittsburgh Pirates in Havana no later than Thursday afternoon.

Kiner, whose bags have been packed for days, said American Airlines had confirmed space on a flight leaving Los Angeles at 10:30 p.m. (PST) tomorrow for Miami.

He said there is a good chance that a cancellation of space on the Tuesday night flight might get him in the Pirate training camp Wednesday afternoon.

The holdout slugger said that he had not heard from General Manager Branch Rickey but assumed that he had made his peace with the Pirates' front office. Kiner announced Sunday night that he was coming to terms with Rickey and would end his long holdout.

In his statement Sunday night, Kiner said the terms he has agreed to accept are almost exactly those he agreed on at a meeting in Hollywood with Rickey last February 13. This arrangement was for Kiner to receive something less than $76,000.

Awards Listed For Gold Medal Tourney

A host of awards will be distributed in both the senior and junior divisions of next week's Gold Medal Basketball Tournament at the Monroe County YMCA. The tournament is scheduled to get underway on Monday.

The list of awards includes championship trophy, second place trophy, third place trophy, a trophy for the fourth place team, 10 awards for members of the championship team and the same number of awards for members of the runner-up quintet.

Also on the list are 10 charms for members of the third and fourth place teams, five gold awards for members of all-tourney team and the same number of silver awards for members of the second all-tourney quintet.

There will be one sportsmanship award of an individual nature, an award for the top scorer in the tournament and another for the player with the most points in a single game. The Gold Medal Tournament will award the Gold United States Federation Honor Medal to the outstanding player of the tournament. This candidate will represent the district for the 1953 All-American selections.

Silver Medal

The tournament will also award a Silver United States Federation Honor Medal to the second outstanding player and this player will also be a candidate for 1953 All-American selections if 16 or more teams take part in the tournament.

A third outstanding player will receive a bronze medal. A "dead shot" award is to be given the player making the most spectacular shot of the tournament, in the estimation of the tournament committee.

Both divisions will receive a complete list of awards.

The deadline for entry into the tournament is Thursday, at 5 p.m.

Entry blanks are available at the YMCA and added information may be obtained by telephoning Stroudsburg 832. Each team is required to post an entry fee of $8.

Two practice games have been listed for the YMCA court today. Frank's Barbers and Litts and Co. clash at 7:15 p.m., while Frailey's Insurance and DeVivo's Shoemen tangle at 8:30 p.m.

Washington, Indiana Favored Today

The swank, 10,500-seat auditorium is a sellout for the showdown battle involving four fast-breaking, sharpshooting conference kingpins rated among the country's top 10. Finals are scheduled tomorrow night.

First Stab

Kansas' floor-pounding ball pirates have the first stab at trying to stop the towering Washington Huskies, who most experts in this hardwood hotbed declare can't miss.

Dr. Forrest "Phog" Allen's brash proteges, with only Captain Dean Kelley back from the imposing squad which swept to the college and Olympic crowns last year, are playing on borrowed time, their coach says.

Washington, owner of a 29-2 record and second behind Indiana in the Associated Press poll, is figured to have too much height and poise for the surprising Big Seven champs.

Japs Decision Giants

Santa Maria, Calif., (AP) — A two run ninth inning homer by Masaaki Hirai off Mario Picone gave the Tokyo Giants a 9-7 victory over the New York Giants "B" team here yesterday. Haris's blow over the right field wall before an overflow crowd of 1,200 came with two out.

Los Angeles (AP) — Righthander Saul Rogovin hurled six scoreless innings yesterday as the Chicago White Sox edged the New York Giants, 4-3.

Each dozen balls used during the coming campaign will result in the league being credited with one dollar toward a trophy.

The next meeting of the circuit is also slated for Bartonville Hotel, on Monday, April 20.

Official Ball

The Reach baseball was adopted as the official ball by the league and the topic of insurance was also discussed.

Official Ball

The Reach baseball was adopted as the official ball by the league and the topic of insurance was also discussed.

Each dozen balls used during the coming campaign will result in the league being credited with one dollar toward a trophy.

Leo Romansavage, recently elected manager of West End A. C., and Ray Davies, well known in area athletic circles, were introduced to the group.

The next meeting of the circuit is also slated for Bartonville Hotel, on Monday, April 20.

Community Bar in its fight for first place in the Record Major was held to two points by A.C. Miller, although they took all honors for the league in the individual and team column. Waljy Straub was high for the night on a 241 and a 643, while the team hit a 929 and 2682. Mike Lanunziata rolling for A.C. Miller came up with a 603, and Bob Weisenflue rolling for Line Material also posted another one as he hit a 608. Leading Scheller and Kitchen helped their cause with three points from Shoemakers Signs.

Saturday morning 10 ladies from the East Stroudsburg Ladies League left for New York and the Journal American Tournament. In the afternoon they were on the Television program Ten Pin Stars and Kay Weisenflue had the honor of being picked to roll a ball in the special events part of the program.

Red Top Tavern mastered the score column with the help of Dick Andress as he rolled 204, 213 and 243 for a 680. Red Top hit 2,836 with one big game of 1,020 and took four points from Martinsville Hotel. Red Top is now six points out of first place, with five weeks to go until the league is finished. Three other men hit 600 with Jack Darr going the route with a 611, Tom Sommers with a 639 and Ernie Martz with a 636.

Esther Emanuel came up with a 506 to be high in the Auxiliary League at the Legion while Martha Koch had high single with a 190. The Twinkle Belles were high with a 690 and 1,931.

In the Special Events Department Joe Brown came to town Friday Night and the Pocono Bowling Center was packed for an exhibition of bowling that was very enlightening for the people. Joe mastered games of 190, 259, 221, 224 and 192 for a 1,086 for the five games or an average of 217. Joe had one miss in the five games, three splits and 32 strikes. The rest were spares. According to the score sheet Joe didn't shoot at more than two pins for any spare except for the one miss.

At the Legion on Tuesday night the POS of A came up with its best match of the season only to lose all four points to second place Heeter's Mobilgas. The Bookies sailed in with three more points which gives them a six and one-half point lead for a sweep of the second half. Serfass Gulf, which started a drive in the last couple of weeks, rolled a 2405 to take four points from West End.

Two men were close for high in the "B" League as Angelo "Meats" DeSanto came up with a 604 and was followed closely by LeRoy Pearson with a 601. Five of the teams were over 2,600 for the league, which shows signs of a fast stepping circuit. Stroudsburg Auto Body is now leading by seven points but this league has another nine weeks to go and that is a lot of points to win or lose.

Mario Bonser posted a 225 to help her to a big 543, but when the final reckoning came Ruth Mader came up with a 554 to lead the East Stroudsburg Ladies in the scoring column last Tuesday. Kay Weisenflue also came up with a 508 and a middle game of 212 to help the Eagles get a $19 for high in the team single department.

The East Stroudsburg Church League had a battle for high as Bill Hay came up with a 244-583 only to be beat by Stan Woolbert with a 246-596. Not to be left out of the running George Lee also posted a 580. St. Matthew's posted a 2,547 for high, with their biggest game being an 884 in the middle.

Stroudsburg Engine Works now leads the Dave Schmidt League by five and one-half with four more weeks to go. R. Greiner came up with 568 for high for the night and his teammate Bill Cooke posted a 210. Cooke was subbing for H. Baustein. The first three places in the league are spread over 10 and one-half points, but the last five places are separated by only four and a half points.

John Levandoski posted 600 even in the "C" League on Friday night for high on games of 235, 195, 170. This gave Regina Hotel a one point lead in first place as they won three points from Lantermann's. Cream-ee Ice Cream is in second place, one point out of first with five weeks to go.

G. Shipp came up with a 566 and a 215 for high in the YMCA Senior League as he hit for Paint Service Center, it a losing cause as the Painters split four points with Pocono Diner.

The Twin-Boro Ladies were lead in the score column by Ruth Bonser with a 182 and a 520, while Monroe Distributors had a 785 and 2182. Bartonville and Lawson are tied for third with 23 points each, while Marsh's Foundry is in second with 26 and leading the league is Monroe Distributors with 28 points.

Decision On Browns Makes St. Louis Happy

St. Louis (P)—A surprised, jubilant St. Louis from the mayor to the little guy who sits in the bleachers—yesterday welcomed the news that the St. Louis Browns are still the St. Louis Browns.

The unexpected decision of the American League to deny Bill Veeck's request to move his club from St. Louis to Baltimore came suddenly, but moved quickly throughout the city.

Mayor Joseph M. Darst, who earlier in the day filed an injunction suit in an effort to keep the Browns in St. Louis, was, of course pleased, but cautious about the future.

"I am sure all St. Louisans are as pleased as I am with the news," Darst said. "I am equally pleased with the intense interest shown by citizens of St. Louis in this matter."

"I am hopeful that the people of St. Louis will not permit their enthusiasm to wane and will continue support of the Browns by attending as many games as possible."

Club Owners Keep Browns In St. Louis

By Joe Reichler
Tampa, Fla. (AP)—The American League flatly refused yesterday to permit Bill Veeck to transfer to St. Louis Browns franchise to Baltimore—an action that came as a huge surprise after a week of intense baseball maneuvering.

A highly placed source said the vote was five to two against the shift, with only the Cleveland Indians and Chicago White Sox siding with Veeck.

Three clubs were reported to have led the fight against the transfer—the New York Yankees, the Philadelphia Athletics, and the Washington Senators. Washington is only 40 miles from Baltimore and a major league club in the Maryland city would undoubtedly draw heavily on fans of the entire area. Previously, however, Senator officials expressed approval of the shift.

Representatives of the eight American League cities met with President Will Harridge for more than five hours.

In the end, the league announced it was inadvisable to permit the shift because of the short period before the baseball season opens in mid-April. It was thought St. Louis fans would give more support to the Browns this year.

The National League has called a special meeting for tomorrow in St. Petersburg to discuss a proposal of Lou Perini of Boston to move his Braves to Milwaukee. What action the National League will take in view of the American League's action is problematical.

Perini said in Bradenton of the American League's decision in the Browns' case:

"Our cases are not parallel. Veeck would get mixed up in a lot of lawsuits if he left St. Louis. I'll be surprised if I don't get the seven votes needed to shift my franchise."

"I know the hurdle is still there," he added. "I've got to get the votes, but I'm optimistic that I will."

Asked what would happen if the National League owners stopped his planned switch to Milwaukee, Perini said:

"We'll just be back where we started. I wouldn't cause any disturbance in baseball. We'd have to play the season at Braves Field."

The International League, of which Baltimore is a member, had scheduled a meeting here today but when word of the Browns' rejection was made known it was called off. Had the Browns moved to Baltimore, it would have been necessary to find a city for the Baltimore Orioles' International League franchise.

Veeck said that until franchise shifts are permitted, "baseball will not be on a sound basis," and added:

"The American obviously is weaker with my operating in St. Louis than they would be if I were to operate successfully somewhere else."

New York Congressman Blasts Vote Against Veeck's Plan

Washington, (AP)—Rep. Celler (D-NY) yesterday called the American League's refusal to move to Baltimore this year "a damned outrage."

"It shows a need for the government to move in now," said the New Yorker who two years ago headed a congressional investigation of organized baseball.

Callers on Mr. and Mrs. Edward Gunn on Saturday were Mr. and Mrs. Raymond Howell. On Tuesday night Mrs. Gunn's parents, Mr. and Mrs. William Vaughn, and Miss Kathy Butz visited with the Gunns.

Mr. and Mrs. Fred Dennis entertained Mr. and Mrs. Harold Seip, Russell Dennis and Donald Beseker last week.

Frank Gunn, who is still on the sick list, was made happy last week by the gift of a large basket of fruit from his immediate neighbors.

The George Colvin family has returned from California. On Tuesday they were supper guests of Mr. and Mrs. Edward Dennis. Diane and Lynne Colvin spent Monday night with the Dennises and Miss Cheryl Smith was their overnight guest on Tuesday.

Two Couples Apply To Wed

Harold R. Quick and Betty J. Avery, both of East Stroudsburg, applied for a marriage license yesterday. Also applying were Frida Buschmann and Irmgard U. Krol, both of Stroudsburg.

E. HOLT WYCKOFF JR. tells volunteer YMCA hostess committee women what the set-up of the campaign organization will be. Seated next to him is John Wilson, YMCA secretary. Beauty Surrounds Riviera But Charming Monte Carlo In Monaco More Interesting

(Following is the twentieth of a series of travel articles written by Ruth Haller Ottaway, mother of James H. Ottaway, publisher of The Daily Record.)

By Ruth Haller Ottaway

Cap Martin—The little principality of Monaco covering only eight square miles, with a population of about fifty thousand, is, like Switzerland, a neutral oasis in a warring world. Here it sits blinking innocently in the Mediterranean sunshine with the chateau of the Prince high above the sea and Monte Carlo, haunting the most famous gambling casino on earth.

In the spacious, beamed library of the Villa Trianon, its many giant windows look out upon a verdant, heavily wooded, hilly country. I muse as I look pensively deep into the pink hearts of dozens of long-stemmed carnations in an urn on the central table. (These blooms are everywhere). All that I have heard and seen about Monaco since arriving comes to mind, satisfying a life-long curiosity. Old facts, new to me.

Little Monaco was bandied about "catch as catch can." The Phoenicians ruled her, then the Greeks followed by the Genoese until France put a finger in the pie and annexed her in 1793. But Sardinia roads, Grand, Moyen and Inferieur (Upper, Middle and Lower), scenic highways of great beauty, lead through the famous Riviera towns of Nice and Cannes. In order to see them again, we took a drive on a sparkling day, through the hills scattered with villas large and small, each in a paradise of its own.

Do you like to sit in chairs arranged as if for a great mass meeting along the seaside boulevard for miles with a solid phalanx of hotels at you back as in Nice? Or do you prefer a busy, compact port like Cannes where hundreds of luxurious yachts are moored, and the Southern Route ships arrive?

Charming spots are all along the Riviera with painters setting up their easels, and night clubs featuring Texas Festivals, the Follies, and American jazz. Nice and its carnival and huge paper clowns disfiguring the lamp-posts and its pathetic flower parade are no lure. For me, charming Monte Carlo and the unique principality of Monaco which holds this fabulous jewel.

Singapore, built on what once was a pestilential island, is now credited with having a death rate as low as that in Britain.

Some People Contend Executive Department Should Be Stronger Than Now Permitted

By Pete Olwyler

A stronger executive department should emerge from any rewriting of Pennsylvania's Constitution, it is argued.

Once upon a time is seemed desirable to set up weak executives, authorities say. This resulted from colonial experience with royal governors.

Nowadays the view has swung toward giving the executive a free hand.

In Pennsylvania the executive is considerably hampered by a Constitution written 80 years ago.

The State Bar Association believes a new Constitution should lodge the executive power of the Commonwealth in the governor.

He should be allowed to appoint the heads of all executive departments with the consent of the Senate, says the association.

This, points out the association, is the way it's done under the United States Constitution—a system which has proven successful.

There is also dead wood in the "Executive" section of the Constitution which could be pruned, according to former attorney-general William A. Schnader.

The State treasurer and the secretary of internal affairs both are elected officers under the Constitution.

Schnader thinks the treasurer should be appointed by the governor.

He adds that the duties of the secretary of internal affairs could be absorbed by certain executive departments.

Not all authorities are in agreement on this second point.

A recent commission on revising the Constitution thought the governor should be able to appoint the secretary of internal affairs, but it said nothing about eliminating the office altogether.

The commission thinks the civil service system should be extended to State government employees.

Other authorities would provide that the governor and other executive officers appear before legislative committees and be questioned whenever budget measures are up for consideration.

Restrictions should be lifted, they say, which now prevent the State government from doing its own printing and from providing supplies necessary for the capitol buildings. Best way to manage this would be simply to repeal Article III, Section 12.

There is another out-dated proviso in the "Executive" section of the Constitution, authorities feel:

It prevents the governor, auditor-general, and treasurer from succeeding themselves in office.

Says Schnader: "There is much doubt as to whether the provisions contained in Section 21... serve any useful purpose."

He says there is no good reason why the auditor-general and treasurer, if competent, should not serve as long as they are wanted.

Other authorities would also permit the governor to succeed himself, but would restrict him to two terms.

Changes in the executive part of the Constitution may be debated. But there is little disagreement that the Constitution itself needs changing.

Three Presidents of the United States died on July 4—John Adams, Jefferson and Monroe.

Community Service...and the Lindsays

Meet Joseph K. Lindsay and his sister, Mary Lindsay—two people who, in quite different ways, help make their community a better place to live in.

Mr. Lindsay is principal of Clifton Heights High School in Delaware County. To this position, so important to the coming generation in his community, he brings the benefit of 18 years' experience in education.

Miss Lindsay too is engaged in an essential community service. She's an important member of the telephone team in nearby Lansdowne...and, after 24 years in telephone work, she knows how much her neighbors depend on the service she helps provide.

It is people like Mary Lindsay... alert, dependable, competent men and women... who make your telephone service so reliable in emergencies, so useful every day in the year.
